W. & R. LECKY'S

SUPERIOR EXTRA PATENT

PLOUGHS

Warranted equal to any ever made in the United States.

In pointing out the advantages of the Ploughs over those generally termed 'Peacock's Patent Ploughs,' the subscribers assure the public that they are not actuated by any motives of jealousy or hostility to the persons who have, as they themselves state, purchased the rights for a 'valuable consideration.' But when on a fair trial, the superiority of their Ploughs has been so generally acknowledged by practical farmers, and from the very rapid sale they have met with, they are induced to prefer their claim to precedence.

Because—Their ploughs have a whole share and landside with a socket, made of wrought iron and steel, which prevents the necessity of a number of screws and bolts, which impede the operation of the ploughs by catching roots, grass, &c.

Because—They are so constructed, that any of the irons may be separately taken to a smith's shop for repair, without the necessity, as in case of 'Peacock's Patents,' of taking the whole plough to the shop.

Because—They are more simple in their construction, and less liable to be out of repair.

The ploughs will all be branded with the names of the subscribers, and warranted, and a general assortment of the various sizes always on hand. Also on hand, a quantity of IRONS and CASTINGS, which will be sold on moderate terms, and instructions given (gratis) to such persons as may wish to make the wood work of their own ploughs.

As the proprietors of 'Peacock's Patents,' wish to deter the public from purchasing what they call 'half patents,' in allusion as we believe to those made by the subscribers, under the penalties of the law for every infringement, we deem it proper to state, that those who are disposed to purchase from us will be indemnified, in any security they demand, from the threats thus improperly held out.

Their ploughs are always made of the best materials, and of well seasoned wood.

They still carry on the COACH & WAGGON making business, at their old stand in Wood st. corner of Virgin alley.

PLOUGHS

Warranted equal to any ever made in the United States.

In pointing out the advantages of the Ploughs over those generally termed 'Peacock's Patent Ploughs,' the subscribers assure the public that they are not actuated by any motives of jealousy or hostility to the persons who have, as they themselves state, purchased the rights for a 'valuable consideration.' But when on a fair trial, the superiority of their Ploughs has been so generally acknowledged by practical farmers, and from the very rapid sale they have met with, they are induced to prefer their claim to precedence.

Because—Their ploughs have a whole share and landside with a socket, made of wrought iron and steel, which prevents the necessity of a number of screws and bolts, which impede the operation of the ploughs by catching roots, grass, &c.

Because—They are so constructed, that any of the irons may be separately taken to a smith's shop for repair, without the necessity, as in case of 'Peacock's Patents,' of taking the whole plough to the shop.

Because—They are more simple in their construction, and less liable to be out of repair.

The ploughs will all be branded with the names of the subscribers, and warranted, and a general assortment of the various sizes always on hand. Also on hand, a quantity of IRONS and CASTINGS, which will be sold on moderate terms, and instructions given (gratis) to such persons as may wish to make the wood work of their own ploughs.

As the proprietors of 'Peacock's Patents,' wish to deter the public from purchasing what they call 'half patents,' in allusion as we believe to those made by the subscribers, under the penalties of the law for every infringement, we deem it proper to state, that those who are disposed to purchase from us will be indemnified, in any security they demand, from the threats thus improperly held out.

Their ploughs are always made of the best materials, and of well seasoned wood.

They still carry on the COACH & WAGGON making business, at their old stand in Wood st. corner of Virgin alley.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

We have been favoured with St. John, N. papers to the 27th ult. The ship Isabella, capt. Patton, has arrived at that port, in 27 days from Greenock, bringing papers to the 20th May, containing London Dates to the 23d. At that time all was quiet in the manufacturing districts. The arrival of the queen was anxiously looked for, and the preparations for the coronation of George IV. engrossed the public attention.

The Queen's birth day was observed at the different public offices, and other places under the control of the executive, with the respect due to her station. The report of the Queen's arrival at Paris was not correct. It was the Marchioness of Bute who arrived there; she found it difficult to assure the populace that waited on her with complimentary garlands, that she was not the Queen of England. There were no accounts of the Queen having left Geneva.

The Nautilus and Chapman, the two first vessels despatched by the British Government with emigrants to the Cape of Good Hope, have safely arrived there.

The grand jury of London have found a bill of indictment for high treason against Edwards, the spy and instigator of the Cato-street conspiracy. Mrs. Thistlewood, Mrs. Brunt, Julian Thistlewood, the son, and other witnesses, were examined in support of the charge. Edwards had absconded; it was said Mr. Harmer, the solicitor, was authorized by some individual to offer 100l. for his apprehension. Evidence was produced that all the pikes which were found in the premises of the conspirators, were manufactured by Edwards' order, and that for every one of them the manufacturer was paid by Edwards. The manufacturer himself came forward to prove this fact.

LONDON, May 8.

The Leaven, 24, Captain Bartholomew, sailed from Portsmouth on Saturday for the coast of Africa. It is said she is going to complete the survey of that part of the coast which was left undone last year, and then endeavor to discover or ascertain the Vigias, in the Saragoa Sea. She is fitted in every respect suitably for an undertaking of this nature, having numerous astronomical instruments on board, as well as many new inventions for trial; particularly a pinnace, which carries out her bower anchors with ease and safety, and the same boat's crew weighs them with great ease. It is the invention of Mr. Cow, the master boat builder of Woolwick dock-yard, and is intended to enable all ship's launches, not only to weigh their bower anchors but also to lay them out in the event of the ship's grounding, and requiring one to heave off by, without the difficulty and danger which have hitherto attended that most desirable and often vitally important object. It is accomplished by fitting the launches on a new principle, with two holes through the bottom, and thereby bringing the weight of the anchor on that part of the boat which is alone capable of sustaining it; the windlass is so constructed that 17 men can weigh a 74's anchor. No additional lumber is taken to sea in the ship, and the boat, when not wanted for this particular service, is precisely in the same state, and calculated to perform the same ordinary duty as at present—every part of the apparatus is fitted in so plain & so simple a manner, that no difficulty can possibly arise in fitting it which may be done in ten minutes. As all the long boats of the ships will be capable of carrying their bower anchors according to this plan, it may be equally applied to merchant ships as to men-of-war. The consequences of loosing an anchor and cable, particularly on a foreign station, to say nothing of the actual value of them, are much deplored by all seamen, who alone are able to judge of them, and of the advantage of having the means within themselves of picking them up, without being obliged to seek a fortuitous aid. The invention has been partially tried, and the experiment exceeded all expectation. The Leaven's boat is the first that has been fitted, at the particular request of her commander.

Bohemia, April 16.

FALL of a MOUNTAIN.

On the night of the 21st of March, a terrible event took place in the circle of Sarez, in Bohemia. The upper part of a mountain detached itself, carrying away with it 16 houses and two churches of the village of Stromlin; which is partly buried some fathoms in the loosened earth. The top of the mountain was about 12 miles in coming loose, but so unequally, that in the space of an hour, some of the buildings fell from 10 paces, others 20 paces, till at length they all fell into ruins, at the distance of 12 miles. Happily no lives were lost. The rains seems to have been prepared by the wet weather which have preceded the present year, and the heavy snow of last winter, is supposed to have contributed to it. The spots over which the detached part of the mountain passed present the appearance of flakes of ice thrown on each other.

WRISBADEN, April 28.

An event as deplorable as extraordinary, has thrown our city, the most important place in the duchy of Nassau, into consternation. We had, as it is well known, an admirable establishment of hot water, which supplied our baths. The waters which were considered among the most salutary of any in Germany, drew here every year a considerable number of foreigners and strangers. For the convenience of our numerous visitors, we have been constructing a new office, destined to receive eighty new baths, they dug an aqueduct and a well which was to draw its waters from the principal hot spring. But suddenly this magnificent spring ceased to flow. The source was probably deranged by the digging, and the waters have dispersed themselves in some other way, into the bosom of the earth. Expresses have been despatched in all directions to communicate this sad intelligence. His royal Highness the Duke of Nassau, who arrived in haste from his residence at Biberich, visited the spot and sought to quiet the distressed inhabitants. But the latter say they would rather have seen the whole city of Wrisbaden in flames than lose their hot spring. The newly dug aqueducts and the well have been filled up without delay, but the old fountain has nevertheless remained dry, and our spring has disappeared. All the scientific men in the neighbourhood have been summoned to give their opinion, and we wait with the most lively impatience the result of their conferences, in hopes that some remedy may be found for our evil.

Miscellaneous.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.

This morning Thomas Bigelow, Esq. Counsellor at law, was brought into the Mayor's Court to receive the sentence of the law, for being concerned in a Conspiracy to Defraud. Alderman Kepelle delivered an able opinion on some points of law, which had been contested by the respective counsel; after which the recorder sentenced the prisoner to three years confinement at hard labour, to be fined in the sum of 700 dollars, with all the costs of prosecution.

Extract of a letter, dated N. York, July 11.

Yesterday David I. Greene, esq. Cashier of the Phœnix Bank in this city, resigned. This was understood to have taken place in consequence of a reduction of his salary of $1000. It was whispered, however, last evening, that there were other and more powerful causes for the measures adopted by Mr. Greene; and this morning, Wall street and the business part of the city were struck with astonishment at the intelligence that Mr. Greene had not only absconded, but had overdrawn his account to an immense amount. We understand that a view of the affairs of the bank has just been concluded, and the actual deficiency is ascertained to be ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-FIVE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS!

It is said that the Counsel of Mr. G. has appeared before the Directors, admitted the defalcation, & offered to assign over claims in favor of Mr. Greene, against certain persons, to nearly the full amount, provided they would exonerate him from all debts and liabilities. To this proposal the Directors refused to accede. Various rumours are in circulation respecting this most unexpected occurrence. Among others it is said to have been ascertained that the deficiency has in part been of several years standing, and has been increasing for the last five or six years.

Counterfeiting upon a wholesale scale.—A man was apprehended in Washington county, in this state, last week, having in his possession 800,000 dollars in spurious bills, principally on the banks in this city. He was on his way from the great manufacturing establishment in Canada when arrested, and was exposed by one of his brothers in iniquity, who but a few days before had been taken into custody for the same crime.—New-York Pap.

Councellor Charles Philips, the noisy, but sometimes eloquent, anti-ministerial Irish orator, has lately been purchased by the British ministry, by being created Poet Laureat to George the Fourth. Thus whilst the government party chop off the heads of the humble radicals for sowing the seeds of rebellion, they distribute in the higher walks of life, liberal rewards, to silence those very tongues that have mainly contributed to set those poor half starved wretches on: And thus the corrupt Walpole's aphorism is verified—'that every man has his price.'

DOMESTIC MANUFACTURES.

Notwithstanding the cruel injustice and abandonment of the free industry of this nation to foreign influence and an afflicting revenue policy, by the public authorities of the government, some successful efforts are making in different departments of manufactures. We have at this moment before us a piece of Jacconet muslin of a fabrick so perfect in every particular that we may safely assert it to be equal in every respect to any thing of the kind produced in any part of the world.

Familiar with the finest webs of Asia, we can confidently say that the piece before is equal in beauty, evenness, and much superior in the finishing, to the fine mulls of Hindostan.

This piece is the first experiment made at the factory of Messrs. Thorp & Slidell, of this neighbourhood, yet it will bear inspection and comparison, with any foreign production of the same number of yarn.

This jacconet rivals in beauty and texture the lawns of Flanders, and for cravats, ruffles, or fine dresses, has no superior; and we earnestly recommend the products of those ingenious manufacturers to the notice and patronage of every friend to American prosperity.

Why do our females—our mothers of families and those rising into life who are to be the parents of the next generation; why do our young females hold back their devotion to the interests and prosperity of their native land. Every nation that has been renowned for its virtues, has derived distinction from the example of its females: the Roman matrons and virgins were ever conspicuous in promoting by their disinterestedness and patriotism, the glory and safety of their country.

The matrons of America, and the sex generally, whose influence so naturally sways mankind, could derive no honours so desirable, no joys more solid, than by consulting the interests and the honour of their country; the glory would be theirs, in giving the fashion of social virtue, and while as many are so honourably employed in protecting the deserted orphan, how much more noble would it be to prevent poverty by preferring domestic industry to that of strangers.

Messrs. Thorp and Slidell are not confined to this article, their checks and curtains are equally as perfect——Aurora.

ATROCIOUS MURDER.

CHILICOTHE, July 6.

On Friday evening last, the dead body of a man was found within a short distance of Mr. Engle's, on the Lancaster road, about 12 miles from this place, having the scull fractured, one of the arms broken and exhibited other marks of violence. We understand that the deceased (who appeared to be about 50 years of age) had taken breakfast on the day that he was murdered, at Mr. M'Cutchen's tavern; and was seen proceeding on his way about ten o'clock. When found his feet were tied together, and his hands wore the appearance of having also been bound. He had been to New-Orleans with a cargo, and has a wife & seven children in the neighbourhood of Pittsburgh. He had some pins, needles, &c. with him, which he disposed of along the road to bear his expenses. A coroner's inquest was held over the body, which returned a verdict of wilful murder by some person or persons unknown."—Sciota Gaz.

MELANCHOLY OCCURRENCE.

A misunderstanding having arisen between Mr. Joseph March, of St. Louis, and Mr. Samuel Williams, a resident of the Marine Settlement, in this state; the latter on Thursday evening the 15th instant, repaired to St. Louis, and about 10 o'clock called at the house of Mr. March and requested a few moments' conversation with that gentleman. They retired to the garden, and a few moments after the report of two pistols was heard. Upon going to the spot Mr. March was found shot near the heart, and in a few moments expired. Williams escaped by leaping the back wall of the garden, and on Friday morning reached Belle Fountain. Soon after his arrival, he called for pen, ink, and paper, and having written a few lines, expressing his regret of the deed he had perpetrated, and a wish that his friends might remain ignorant of the transaction, put a period to his existence, by discharging a pistol in his mouth. Mr. March was a gentleman highly esteemed by his acquaintances, and on Saturday last his remains were followed to the silent grave by a large concourse of citizens. Williams was a native of Boston, Mass. and latterly a merchant in the city of New-York.

Illinois Intelligencer.

We are informed that the figure of Hercules was placed on the head of the ship now bearing the name of Ohio, before the Commissioners of the Navy were apprized of the means which would be resorted to in order to ascertain what name she should bear, and that they have since directed that it should be removed, and the figure of an Indian warrior be substituted as one more appropriate.

We also understand that in future, the figure heads of ships building will be emblematical of the different states after which they are called: and to this end it is desirable that the arms of the new states should be better known.

Wash. City pap.

The proposed provision for King George IVth. in supporting the honor and dignity of the crown of England, is one million and fifty-seven thousand pounds sterling, to be charged upon, and paid out of the consolidated fund, one-fifth of which is for Ireland.

Camp Meeting.—At a Methodist Meeting of this kind, held on Sunday se'night, near Wickford, R. I. nearly 15,000 of both sexes were assembled and were preached to by twenty five Methodist ministers. Of these it is said 10,000 slept in tents—the encampment being illuminated by lamps and guarded all night.

SHEFFIELD TRADE.

In the English newspapers, the Sheffield Mercury of the 22d April, there is a well written article on the Sheffield Trade, which contains the following paragraph:

"America has long been one of the most important and valuable markets for our wares; but in consequence of their commerce being frequently interrupted, together with the misunderstandings and ruptures that have taken place between that country and this, has gradually weakened our interest with the Americans, and prompted them to turn their attention to manufactures, but with what success I am not prepared to say, though it is evident they are purchasing large quantities of steel, ready prepared for the hammer. And it is not too much to presume that more steel has been exported to America, within the last four or five years from this town and neighborhood than has been worked up in our own manufactories in the same period, which has engendered an evil much to be regretted and accounts for the decline in the American markets. But, in all probability the evil will not stop here, as it is very obvious that as they have occasion for such large quantities of steel, they have artizans to work it up; and if successful, they will not long resort to England for [illegible] but will make it themselves; and this is more probable, as the American government are about to pass some very restrictive laws, which, if put in force, will almost amount to a complete prohibition. Thus we have been preparing the way to our own ruin, by furnishing them with the only article that would have kept them in a state of dependence on this country for hardware.

IMPORTANT TO TANNERS.

The patent right for preparing, using, and vending Chesnut Wood for the purpose of tanning and dying in the New-England states, is vested in the 'Springfield Manufacturing Company,' who will soon have in operation machinery & apparatus for preparing the wood fit for use, and will deliver it to purchasers in large or small quantities, at any place within the above limits, for a sum that will not exceed two thirds of the amount of the price of an equivalent of oak bark, on a credit of one year. The proprietors have no hesitation in saying that the above material, for the purpose of tanning, is in every respect superior to oak bark. The leather tanned with it is of a better quality, being firmer, less porous, and at the same time more pliable—it is also very neat and convenient in the application.

Letters relative to the above, addressed to the subscriber, at Springfield Connecticut will be promptly attended to.

BENJ. JENKS, Agent.

Springfield, Mass. May 1820.

From the 'American Journal of Science, and the Arts,' edited by professor Silliman, a gentleman of great respectability, and celebrated for his scientific knowledge, in vol. 1st, No. 3, p. 312, is the following:

'A considerable time since we were confidentially made acquainted with the discovery detailed in the following letter. We have repeated the most important of Mr. Shelden's experiments, both in relation to tanning and dying, & are well satisfied that the discoverer has not overrated or erroneously estimated the value of his own results. We are persuaded that the highly useful arts alluded to will derive important aid from the use of a material so abundant and cheap as chesnut wood.'

Extract of a letter from Mr. William Shelden, To Professor Silliman, dated Springfield, Massachusetts, Feb. 27th 1820.

"Dear Sir—I send you a more particular account of the newly discovered properties of the chesnut.

"This tree, (Fagus Castinea, Linn) is very abundant in New-England and the middle states, and occurs in the mountainous districts as far southwardly as South Carolina, or perhaps even in Georgia.

"It is one of the most stately trees of the forest; scarcely less distinguished by the beauty of its foliage, than by the durability of its wood. By repeated analysis, conducted with the most minute attention to every circumstance which would insure accuracy it appears, incredible as it may seem, that the chesnut wood contains twice as much tanning as rossed oak bark, & six-sevenths as much colouring matter (which gives a black with iron) as log wood—I am aware that nothing could be farther from the common apprehension than such results; but the uniform success of a great variety of experiments in tanning and dying, in addition to the other kind of evidence, should satisfy the most incredulous.

The leather tanned with it has in every instance been superior to that tanned in a comparative experiment with oak bark, being firmer, less porous, and at the same time more pliable. The reason for this difference will probably be found in the high state of oxygenizement of the bark, particularly of the epidermis, by which it is rendered in a certain degree acrid and corrosive."—Springfield Patriot.

WEAK EYES.—By mere chance I have found out that a piece of green glass, laid flat on a book, will be of the utmost benefit to those who are troubled with weak eyes. I mean to those who wish to read, but who are often, in the most interesting parts perhaps, obliged reluctantly to leave off. Some will say you may as well wear green spectacles; but I say no. A piece of fine clear green glass, about the size of a royal octavo page, will be found of infinitely more assistance; and in order to strengthen the fact, I beg to say that a young gentleman about the age of sixteen, was learning to play the flute, but before he could play a note, was always obliged to have the music coloured, either green or blue, which of course was attended with much inconvenience, and in some cases would have been quite out of the question. He tried green spectacles, but they did not answer the end. Being one day in the garden, he placed a piece of green glass on his book, and found that he could bear to read without the smallest inconvenience. As this simple method of preserving the sight, may be of importance to many of your readers, I would be glad if you will give it publicity.—Lon. M. Magazine.

MR. EDITOR;

An incident occurred at my house yesterday, which very much astonished me and a number of others who witnessed it; and I should like to hear it accounted for by philosophers and scientifick men. My servant had been washing, and among other things had washed a muslin handkerchief, belonging to my wife, being about the half of a yard square; it was starched but not ironed, and hung on a line in the yard to dry. After becoming dry it arose from the line and ascended like a balloon in rather a sloping direction, until it entirely disappeared; when last seen it looked like a small star. There was very little air stirring, and there were no clouds. We desire for information on the its ascension was occasioned by the peculiar dryness and denseness of the atmosphere, or from a particular form that it had assumed on leaving the line, I leave to the learned to decide. This extraordinary fact can be attested by perhaps fifty persons.

A terrible accident occurred at the circus in Cadiz on the 3d of May, at a Bull fight given for the benefit of the soldiers of Quirogas army. "QUID EST HOC."

A young man who was a student in one of our colleges, being very vain of his knowledge of the Latin language, embraced every opportunity that offered, of uttering short sentences in Latin, before his more illiterate companions. An uncle of his, who was a sea-faring man, having just arrived from a long voyage, invited his nephew to visit him on board the ship. The young gentleman went on board, and was highly pleased with every thing he saw. Wishing to give his uncle an idea of his superior knowledge, he tapped him on the shoulder, and pointing to the windlass, asked 'Quid est hoc?' His uncle being a man who despised such vanity, took a chew of tobacco from his mouth threw it in his nephew's face, and exclaimed 'Hoc est quid.'

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

We have been favoured with St. John, N. papers to the 27th ult. The ship Isabella, capt. Patton, has arrived at that port. in 27 days from Greenock, bringing papers to the 26th May, containing London Dates to the 23d. At that time all was quiet in the manufacturing districts. The arrival of the queen was anxiously looked for, and the preparations for the coronation of George IV. engrossed the public attention.

The Queen's birth day was observed at the different public offices, and other places under the control of the executive, with the respect due to her station. The report of the Queen's arrival at Paris was not correct. It was the Marchioness of Bute who arrived there; she found it difficult to assure the populace that waited on her with complimentary garlands, that she was not the Queen of England. There were no accounts of the Queen having left Geneva.

The Nautilus and Chapman, the two first vessels despatched by the British Government with emigrants to the Cape of Good Hope, have safely arrived there.

The grand jury of London have found a bill of indictment for high treason against Edwards, the spy and instigator of the Cato-street conspiracy. Mrs. Thistlewood, Mrs. Brunt, Julian Thistlewood, the son, and other witnesses, were examined in support of the charge. Edwards had absconded; it was said Mr. Harmer, the solicitor, was authorized by some individual to offer 100*l.* for his apprehension. Evidence was produced that all the pikes which were found in the premises of the conspirators, were manufactured by Edwards' order, and that for every one of them the manufacturer was paid by Edwards. The manufacturer himself came forward to prove this fact.

LONDON, May 8.

The Leaven, 24, Captain Bartholomew, sailed from Portsmouth on Saturday for the coast of Africa. It is said she is going to complete the survey of that part of the coast which was left undone last year, and then endeavor to discover or ascertain the Vigias, in the Saragoa Sea. She is fitted in every respect suitably for an undertaking of this nature, having numerous astronomical instruments on board, as well as many new inventions for trial; particularly a pinnace, which carries out her bower anchors with ease and safety, and the same boat's crew weighs them with great ease. It is the invention of Mr. Cow, the master boat builder of Woolwick dock-yard, and is intended to enable all ship's launches, not only to weigh their bower anchors but also to lay them out in the event of the ship's grounding, and requiring one to heave off by, without the difficulty and danger which have hitherto attended that most desirable and often vitally important object. It is accomplished by fitting a windlass on a new principle, with two holes through the bottom, and thereby bringing the weight of the anchor on that part of the boat which is alone capable of sustaining it; the windlass is so constructed that 17 men can weigh a 74's anchor. No additional number is taken to sea in the ship, and the boat, when not wanted for this particular service, is precisely in the same state, and calculated to perform the same ordinary duty as at present—every part of the apparatus is fitted in so plain & so simple a manner, that no difficulty can possibly arise in fitting it which may be done in ten minutes. As all the long boats of the ships will be capable of carrying their bower anchors according to this plan, it may be equally applied to merchant ships as to men-of-war. The consequences of loosing an anchor and cable, particularly on a foreign station, to say nothing of the actual value of them, are much deplored by all seamen, who alone are able to judge of them, and of the advantage of having the means within themselves of picking them up, without being obliged to seek a fortuitous aid. The invention has been partially tried, and the experiment exceeded all expectation. The Leaven's boat is the first that has been fitted, at the particular request of her commander.

Bohemia, April 16.

FALL of a MOUNTAIN.

On the night of the 21st of March, a terrible event took place in the circle of Sarez, in Bohemia. The upper part of a mountain detached itself, carrying away with it 16 houses and two churches of the village of Stromlin; which is partly buried some fathoms in the loosened earth. The top of the mountain was about 12 hours in coming loose, but so unequally, that in the space of an hour, some of the buildings slid down 10 paces, others 20 paces, till at length they all fell into ruins, at the distance of 300 paces. Happily no lives were lost. The event seems to have been prepared by the wet seasons which have preceded the present year, and the heavy snow of last winter is supposed to have contributed to it. The spots over which the detached part of the mountain passed, present the appearance of flakes of ice thrown upon each other.

WRISBADEN, April 23.

An event as deplorable as extraordinary, has thrown our city, the most important place in the duchy of Nassau, into consternation. We possessed, as it is well known, an admirable spring of hot water, which supplied our baths. These, which were considered among the most salutary of any in Germany, draw here every year a considerable number of foreigners and strangers. For the convenience of our illustrious visitors, we have been constructing a large edifice, destined to receive eighty new baths, when the work was finished, and in order to procure the water necessary to supply these baths, they dug an aqueduct and a well which was to draw its waters from the principal hot spring. But suddenly this magnificent spring ceased to flow. The source was probably deranged by the digging, and the waters have dispersed themselves in some other way, into the bosom of the earth. Expresses have been despatched in all directions to communicate this sad intelligence. His royal Highness the Duke of Nassau, who arrived in haste from his residence at Biberich, visited the spot and sought to quiet the distressed inhabitants. But the latter say they would rather have seen the whole city of Wrisbaden in flames than lose their hot spring. The newly dug aqueducts and the well have been filled up without delay, but the old fountain has nevertheless remained dry, and our spring has disappeared. All the scientific men in the neighbourhood have been summoned to give their opinion, and we wait with the most lively impatience the result of their conferences, in hopes that some remedy may be found for our evil.

Miscellaneous.

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.

This morning Thomas Bigelow, Esq. Counsellor at law, was brought into the Mayor's Court to receive the sentence of the law, for being concerned in a Conspiracy to Defraud. Alderman Kepelle delivered an able opinion on some points of law, which had been contested by the respective counsel; after which the recorder sentenced the prisoner to three years confinement at hard labour, to be fined in the sum of 700 dollars, with all the costs of prosecution.

Extract of a letter, dated N. York, July 11.

Yesterday David I. Greene, esq. Cashier of the Phœnix Bank in this city, resigned. This was understood to have taken place in consequence of a reduction of his salary of $1000. It was whispered, however, last evening, that there were other and more powerful causes for the measures adopted by Mr. Greene; and this morning, Wall street and the business part of the city were struck with astonishment at the intelligence that Mr. Greene had not only absconded, but had overdrawn his account to an immense amount. We understand that a view of the affairs of the bank has just been concluded, and the actual deficiency is ascertained to be ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-FIVE THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS!

It is said that the Counsel of Mr. G. has appeared before the Directors, admitted the defalcation, & offered to assign over claims in favor of Mr. Greene, against certain persons, to nearly the full amount, provided they would exonerate him from all debts and liabilities. To this proposal the Directors refused to accede. Various rumours are in circulation respecting this most unexpected occurrence. Among others it is said to have been ascertained that the deficiency has in part been of several years standing, and has been increasing for the last five or six years.

Counterfeiting upon a wholesale scale.—A man was apprehended in Washington county, in this state, last week, having in his possession 800,000 dollars in spurious bills, principally on the banks in this city. He was on his way from the great manufacturing establishment in Canada when arrested, and was exposed by one of his brothers in iniquity, who but a few days before had been taken into custody for the same crime.—New-York Pap.

Councellor Charles Philips, the noisy, but sometimes eloquent, anti-ministerial Irish orator, has lately been purchased by the British ministry, by being created Poet Laureat to George the Fourth. Thus whilst the government party chop off the heads of the humble radicals for sowing the seeds of rebellion, they distribute in the higher walks of life, liberal rewards, to silence those very tongues that have mainly contributed to set those poor half starved wretches on: And thus the corrupt Walpole's aphorism is verified—'that every man has his price.'

DOMESTIC MANUFACTURES.

Notwithstanding the cruel injustice and abandonment of the free industry of this nation to foreign influence and an afflicting revenue policy, by the public authorities of the government, some successful efforts are making in different departments of manufactures. We have at this moment before us a piece of Jacconet muslin of a fabrick so perfect in every particular that we may safely assert it to be equal in every respect to any thing of the kind produced in any part of the world.

Familiar with the finest webs of Asia, we can confidently say that the piece before is equal in beauty, evenness, and much superior in the finishing, to the fine mulls of Hindostan.

This piece is the first experiment made at the factory of Messrs. Thorp & Slidell, of this neighbourhood, yet it will bear inspection and comparison, with any foreign production of the same number of yarn.

This jacconet rivals in beauty and texture the lawns of Flanders, and for cravats, ruffles, or fine dresses, has no superior; and we earnestly recommend the products of those ingenious manufacturers to the notice and patronage of every friend to American prosperity.

Why do our females—our mothers of families and those rising into life who are to be the parents of the next generation; why do our young females hold back their devotion to the interests and prosperity of their native land. Every nation that has been renowned for its virtues, has derived distinction from the example of its females: the Roman matrons and virgins were ever conspicuous in promoting by their disinterestedness and patriotism, the glory and safety of their country.

The matrons of America, and the sex generally, whose influence so naturally sways mankind, could derive no houours so desirable, no joys more solid, than by consulting the interests and the honour of their country; the glory would be theirs, in giving the fashion of social virtue, and while as many are so honourably employed in protecting the deserted orphan, how much more noble would it be to prevent poverty by preferring domestic industry to that of strangers.

Messrs. Thorp and Slidell are not confined to this article, their checks and curtains are equally as perfect——Aurora.

ATROCIOUS MURDER.

CHILICOTHE, July 6.

On Friday evening last, the dead body of a man was found within a short distance of Mr. Engle's, on the Lancaster road, about 12 miles from this place, having the scull fractured, one of the arms broken and exhibited other marks of violence. We understand that the deceased (who appeared to be about 50 years of age) had taken breakfast on the day that he was murdered, at Mr. M'Cutchen's tavern; and was seen proceeding on his way about ten o'clock. When found his feet were tied together, and his hands wore the appearance of having also been bound. He had been to New-Orleans with a cargo, and has a wife & seven children in the neighbourhood of Pittsburgh. He had some pins, needles, &c. with him, which he disposed of along the road to bear his expenses. A coroner's inquest was held over the body, which returned a verdict of wilful murder by some person or persons unknown."—Scioto Gaz.

MELANCHOLY OCCURRENCE.

A misunderstanding having arisen between Mr. Joseph March, of St. Louis, and Mr. Samuel Williams, a resident of the Marine Settlement, in this state; the latter on Thursday evening the 15th instant, repaired to St. Louis, and about 10 o'clock called at the house of Mr. March and requested a few moments' conversation with that gentleman. They retired to the garden, and a few moments after the report of two pistols was heard. Upon going to the spot Mr. March was found shot near the heart, and in a few moments expired. Williams escaped by leaping the back-wall of the garden, and on Friday morning reached Belle Fountain. Soon after his arrival, he called for pen, ink, and paper, and having written a few lines, expressing his regret of the deed he had perpetrated, and a wish that his friends might remain ignorant of the transaction, put a period to his existence, by discharging a pistol in his mouth. Mr. March was a gentleman highly esteemed by his acquaintances, and on Saturday last his remains were followed to the silent grave by a large concourse of citizens. Williams was a native of Boston, Mass. and latterly a merchant in the city of New-York.

Illinois Intelligencer.

We are informed that the figure of Hercules was placed on the head of the ship now bearing the name of Ohio, before the Commissioners of the Navy were apprized of the means which would be resorted to in order to ascertain what name she should bear, and that they have since directed that it should be removed, and the figure of an Indian warrior be substituted as one more appropriate.

We also understand that in future, the figure heads of ships building will be emblematical of the different states after which they are called: and to this end it is desirable that the arms of the new states should be better known.

Wash. City pap.

The proposed provision for King George IVth. in supporting the honor and dignity of the crown of England, is one million and fifty-seven thousand pounds sterling, to be charged upon, and paid out of the consolidated fund, one-fifth of which is for Ireland.

Camp Meeting.—At a Methodist Meeting of this kind, held on Sunday se'night, near Wickford, R. I. nearly 15,000 of both sexes were assembled and were preached to by twenty five Methodist ministers. Of these it is said 10,000 slept in tents—the encampment being illuminated by lamps and guarded all night.

SHEFFIELD TRADE.

In the English newspapers, the Sheffield Mercury of the 22d April, there is a well written article on the Sheffield Trade, which contains the following paragraph:

"America has long been one of the most important and valuable markets for our wares; but in consequence of their commerce being frequently interrupted, together with the misunderstandings and ruptures that have taken place between that country and this, has gradually weakened our interest with the Americans, and prompted them to turn their attention to manufactures, but with what success I am not prepared to say, though it is evident they are purchasing large quantities of steel, ready prepared for the hammer. And it is not too much to presume that more steel has been exported to America, within the last four or five years from this town and neighborhood than has been worked up in our own manufactories in the same period, which has engendered an evil much to be regretted and accounts for the decline in the American markets. But, in all probability the evil will not stop here, as it is very obvious that as they have occasion for such large quantities of steel, they have artisans to work it up; and if successful, they will not long resort to England for that [illegible] but will make it themselves; and this is more probable, as the American government are about to pass some very restrictive laws, which, if put in force, will almost amount to a complete prohibition. Thus we have been preparing the way to our own ruin, by furnishing them with the only article that would have kept them in a state of dependence on this country for hardware.

IMPORTANT TO TANNERS.

The patent right for preparing, using, and vending Chesnut Wood for the purpose of tanning and dying in the New-England states, is vested in the 'Springfield Manufacturing Company,' who will soon have in operation machinery & apparatus for preparing the wood fit for use, and will deliver it to purchasers in large or small quantities, at any place within the above limits, for a sum that will not exceed two thirds of the amount of the price of an equivalent of oak bark, on a credit of one year. The proprietors have no hesitation in saying that the above material, for the purpose of tanning, is in every respect superior to oak bark. The leather tanned with it is of a better quality, being firmer, less porous, and at the same time more pliable—it is also very neat and convenient in the application.

Letters relative to the above, addressed to the subscriber, at Springfield Connecticut will be promptly attended to.

BENJ. JENKS, Agent.

Springfield, Mass. May 1820.

From the 'American Journal of Science, and the Arts,' edited by professor Silliman, a gentleman of great respectability, and celebrated for his scientific knowledge, in vol. 1st, No. 3, p. 312, is the following:

'A considerable time since we were confidentially made acquainted with the discovery detailed in the following letter. We have repeated the most important of Mr. Shelden's experiments, both in relation to tanning and dying, & are well satisfied that the discoverer has not overrated or erroneously estimated the value of his own results. We are persuaded that the highly useful arts alluded to will derive important aid from the use of a material so abundant and cheap as chesnut wood.'

Extract of a letter from Mr. William Shelden, To Professor Silliman, dated Springfield, Massachusetts, Feb. 27th 1820.

"Dear Sir—I send you a more particular account of the newly discovered properties of the chesnut.

"This tree, (Fagus Castinea, Linn) is very abundant in New-England and the middle states, and occurs in the mountainous districts as far southwardly as South Carolina, or perhaps even in Georgia.

"It is one of the most stately trees of the forest; scarcely less distinguished by the beauty of its foliage, than by the durability of its wood. By repeated analysis, conducted with the most minute attention to every circumstance which could insure accuracy it appears, incredible as it may seem, that the chesnut wood contains twice as much tanning as rossed oak bark, & six-sevenths as much colouring matter (which gives a black with iron) as log wood—I am aware that nothing could be farther from the common apprehension than such results; but the uniform success of a great variety of experiments in tanning and dying, in addition to the other kind of evidence, should satisfy the most incredulous.

The leather tanned with it has in every instance been superior to that tanned in a comparative experiment with oak bark, being firmer, less porous, and at the same time more pliable. The reason for this difference will probably be found in the high state of oxygenizement of the bark, particularly of the epidermis, by which it is rendered in a certain degree acrid and corrosive."—Springfield Patriot.

WEAK EYES.—By mere chance I have found out that a piece of green glass, laid flat on a book, will be of the utmost benefit to those who are troubled with weak eyes. I mean to those who wish to read, but who are often, in the most interesting parts perhaps, obliged reluctantly to leave off. Some will say you may as well wear green spectacles; but I say no. A piece of fine clear green glass, about the size of a royal octavo page, will be found of infinitely more assistance; and in order to strengthen the fact, I beg to say that a young gentleman about the age of sixteen, was learning to play the flute, but before he could play a note, was always obliged to have the music coloured, either green or blue, which of course was attended with much inconvenience, and in some cases would have been quite out of the question. EDITED BY MORGAN NEVILLE.

MONDAY MORNING, JULY 24, 1820.

PUBLIC MEETING.

PITTSBURGH, July 14.

At a respectable Meeting of gentlemen belonging to all the different parties in this district, it was unanimously considered and agreed that our district has been most ably and satisfactorily represented for the last term, in Congress and in the general assembly of this state.

That any attempt, at this important period, to deprive the district of the talents and ability which has been displayed in promoting our interests by our late representatives, is prejudicial to the best interests of the district, and ought to be counteracted by all who have its welfare at heart.

That we all most sincerely wish for harmony of sentiment and of exertion, and will do our utmost to promote measures calculated to secure to us the services of our present representatives for another term.

We therefore invite a meeting of all good men of all parties, to assemble at the Court House, in this City, on Wednesday next, at 12 o'clock, in the hope that effectual measures may be adopted for ensuring to our district such a representation as may be most useful to us, and satisfactory to those whose dearest interests depend on a proper selection of candidates.

FELIX BRUNOT,
WM. ROBINSON, Jr.
D. S. SCULLY,
JOHN SPEAR,
J. M. SNOWDEN,
FELIX BRUNOT, Jr.

E. DENNY,
Committee.

PURSUANT to the above notice, upwards of 600 persons, a large proportion of whom were from the country, assembled in the Court-house, without distinction of party. The Hon. JONATHAN H. WALKER, Esq. was called to the Chair, and FELIX BRUNOT, Jr. appointed Secretary. The objects of the meeting having been stated from the chair; the following resolutions were severally read, and adopted, with but few dissenting voices.

Resolved, That the pre-eminent services rendered to this district by William Wilkins, esq. in the State Legislature, and by Henry Baldwin, esq. in Congress, entitle them to the highest gratitude and confidence of their constituents, & that, in the opinion of this meeting, the aspect of public affairs, & the vital interests of this district of the western country, demand imperiously a continuance of their best exertions in their respective stations, to complete the wise measure they have so happily begun.

Resolved, That the late nomination of William Wilkins, esq. as a candidate for Congress at the ensuing election is, in the opinion of this meeting, greatly prejudicial to the public good; inasmuch as it unavoidably withdraws him from the state legislature, at a period most essential to us—deprives us of the public services of either Mr. Baldwin or himself, when we most want an augmentation of representative strength, and have much to dread from a diminution of it, and obviously tends to excite dissention, division and strife, at a time when harmony and union are essential to our welfare.

Resolved, That this meeting strongly confiding in the public spirit, patriotism, and disinterestedness of William Wilkins, do most earnestly request and entreat him to withhold his assent to the proposal of becoming a candidate for Congress, and that he would agree to serve this district as a member of the House of Representatives in the State Legislature.

Resolved, That James Ross, esq. Anthony Beelen, Alexander M'Clurg, of Pittsburgh; Christopher Cowan, of Fayette; Doctor Joseph Curry, of St. Clair; John M'Clure, of Mifflin: James Brice, of Elizabeth; & William Robinson, Jr. of Ross, be a committee on behalf of this meeting to present these resolutions respectfully to William Wilkins, esq. and to obtain his answer to the same, which they are instructed to report to the meeting this afternoon.

The meeting then adjourned to meet again in the afternoon at 4 o'clock.

4 o'clock P. M.—The meeting having assembled and being organized as before, the committee appointed to wait on Mr. Wilkins made report—That having pursuant to instructions presented to Mr. Wilkins a copy of the resolutions of this meeting, they had received from his hands the following answer.

Pittsburgh, July 19.

To my Fellow Citizens.

Your Committee have done me the honour to present to me, a copy of several resolutions, this day adopted by you in a public meeting convened at the Court House in this city.

For this expression of your confidence and good opinion, I return you my very grateful and sincere acknowledgments. Such approbation of our fellow citizens is the highest reward we can receive for any service; and to me was unexpected, because unmerited.

However honourable and complimentary to me these public proceedings may be, they are not unattended with a great degree of pain & embarrassment. The [illegible] call upon me (not to be resisted) [illegible]ably in [illegible]ly [illegible]ination of [illegible] made by [illegible] portion of [illegible] was unexpected by me. Although ambitious to be useful to the community, upon which I have been engrafted from my very infancy to the present day, I did not aspire to that distinction which the Democratic Republicans were disposed to bestow upon me, at their last convention of delegates. But, coming from so respectable a source, and, at the same time, not being a candidate for any other station, I assented to the nomination, and my name was placed before the public for Congress in opposition to Mr. Baldwin; a gentleman towards whom I was drawn by many considerations of private friendship and attachment, but from whom I have happened to differ in one or two great national questions which have lately agitated the country.

Since my assent to this nomination, my situation has become the most delicate and embarrassing; I have been pressed, by almost every description of my fellow citizens, and been again & again waited upon by various committees appointed at different public meetings, and solicited, upon public considerations, to yield for the present, and consent to be again a candidate for the station I had the honour of holding last winter in the legislature.

Although I had no wish to distract the public mind, & was heartily willing to adopt any course in which my fellow citizens might, for one moment, suppose I could be of public use, yet, I was not at liberty to give way to all these appeals to my public and private feelings, because I had assented to the flattering nomination to which I have alluded.

I am now again called upon by the voice of a public meeting, composed of different parties—again am I desired not to weaken that strength of which our country, at this moment, is in so much need—again solicited by my fellow citizens to make the change; to become a candidate for the state, instead of the national lagislature. Either situation is confidential and important, and more honourable to me than I merit. But, can I recede, with propriety, from the ground I have taken? Can I now withdraw the consent I have given to another portion of my fellow citizens?

These questions are of great personal importance to myself; of a nature very critical, and probably tending to jeopardize the standing I have been so happy as to gain with many of my fellow citizens. But, a crisis in public feeling, evinced in the general cry, has arrived, at which I must answer; and, either pertinaciously persist in the course I have adopted or yield to your wishes.

Here, then, is my reply to your resolutions.—I give way; and consent to serve in the legislature of our state, if it should be the pleasure of the people to confer upon me that honourable station.

In thus yielding to the reiterated wishes of several public meetings and withdrawing my consent to a former nomination, I hope I violate no moral or political principle; and I also very sincerely hope, that I give no offence & commit no injustice to those gentlemen who did me the distinguished and disinterested favour of conferring on me that nomination. I am well aware that I owe them much, and ought to be able to offer to them strong and irresistible reasons for the step I have now taken—particularly so, as I have until this moment continued to be a candidate for Congress, & mentioned this continuance in a letter of Monday last addressed to the gentlemen of a committee of Correspondence, and which I observe is this day given to the public.

In the first place; I have to give to them the most solemn assurance that, in assenting to their nomination, I was sincere; and had no idea of yielding my pretensions until coerced into the measure by what appears to be the will of the people; which no one, professing as I do, to be a public man, can, or ought to resist.

Nor, have I been actuated by a wish to throw disorder into their ticket; nor to produce to this respectable party the least political perplexity. They will recollect that the period is an early one; that a name can be substituted combining more weight & talents than mine; and, above all, that, in Butler county, forming a part of our Congressional district, no nomination has yet taken place.

At this moment I have not time to detail to those gentlemen the various considerations, both public and private, which have pressed upon me, and produced the measure I have now adopted. I must be content with offering two or three of my reasons.

1st. In the present deplorable state of our country, harmony and union are essentially necessary, in order to afford any chance of securing two or three public measures, which can alone restore us to any degree of public prosperity. When I assented to my nomination as a candidate for Congress, I could readily foresee a strongly contested election; but I did not, and no one could anticipate the extraordinary public sensibility which has been excited, and the excessive and unprecedented agitation to which the whole community appears to have been thrown. I am unwilling even to be the innocent cause of this effect, & deem it my private and public duty to do all in my power to restore harmony amongst my fellow citizens.

2d. I can only boast of an honest zeal and faithful exertions to promote the internal improvement of our state. The only public object, during the present wholesome state of our code of laws, and the peaceful and settled condition of our government, worthy the undivided attention of our state legislature, and at all likely to restore vigour and activity to our country, and, particularly to the western section of Pennsylvania, for the encouragement of domestic industry and home manufactures depends upon our national councils. I have taken a part in common with my worthy col- object; and still have a most anxious wish to lend all my aid to succeed in its accomplishment. This point has been pressed upon me in terms the most forcible by every description of my fellow citizens, and has produced the most painful regret that I should for one moment, have thought of abandoning this vital object, the work of which is barely commenced.

3d. I have been uniformly impelled by the strongest disposition to respect the public will in every thing that relates to myself. In a happy government like ours, I hope the voice of the people may always be imperative. It may be difficult indeed, indeed it is improbable, in the present conjuncture of affairs, to ascertain what may be the wish of my fellow citizens, but such has been the strong and repeated expressions of public sentiment upon the subject, that any other course of proceeding on my part would look like a fastidious resistance of the public will.

I shall conclude this reply, by expressing my hope, that the motives which have impelled me to make it, will be duly appreciated by my fellow citizens; and, as to that particular portion of them, to whom I have with great reluctance, hazarded giving offence, I appeal to the same generous feelings for my apology, which induced them, in the first instance, to place me in nomination. Should they not be pleased to view this act in the same light, it strikes me, I shall ever regret it as a personal misfortune.

With every wish, gentlemen, for your individual happiness, and the prosperity of the community of which you are members, I remain your obliged and grateful fellow citizen,

WILLIAM WILKINS.

This address was received with loud and general acclamations. It was then

Resolved—That the most cordial thanks and affectionate regard of this meeting, be conveyed to WILLIAM WILKINS, Esquire, for his prompt, decisive, and satisfactory reply to our resolutions transmitted to him this morning: with assurances, that, in the opinion of this meeting, he has thereby rendered a most important service to this district, and given a splendid proof of public spirit, disinterestedness, and devotion to the true interests of his country.

Resolved—That it is hereby earnestly recommended to all good men of all parties, to lay aside every minor party, or private consideration, and to come forward with zeal, vigour and unanimity, in support of WILLIAM WILKINS, Esq. as a member of the House of Representatives, in the state legislature of this state, for the ensuing year.

Resolved—That the whole proceedings of this meeting be drawn up in form, and presented by our chairman to William Wilkins, Esquire, and be published in the several newspapers of this city.

The meeting then closed its proceedings by the following vote of thanks to their chairman.

Resolved—That the Hon. Jonathan H. Walker, Esquire, receive the thanks of this meeting, for the firm and impartial manner in which he has conducted its proceedings; & for the able & impressive manner in which he explained the objects of the meeting.

JONATHAN H. WALKER,
Chairman.

Attest,

Felix Brunot, Jr. Secretary.

A paragraph in the last Gazette relative to the late Meeting of Young Men, has unintentionally given pain to the gentlemen named as Chairman and Secretary. They are of course, mere organs of the will of the meeting, and have no control over the proceedings but by express authority. At the late hour, it seems, when the question as to publication was put, there being left a majority opposed to it, no discretion remained with these gentlemen. Such, we know to have been the view of the matter taken by the writer of the communication referred to.

THE following letter from Robert Southey to a literary gentleman, in the north-western part of our state, was lately enclosed to us by a friend now travelling through that country. Any thing from such a pen as the laureate of England must be interesting; but the present letter is particularly so to those who are acquainted with the dispute between English and American genius, and with the insolence which has for some years distinguished several of the British periodical works, on the subject of American talent. Mr. Southey is one of those who have been suspected of contributing their mite in nourishing this prejudice. It must be gratifying to every American to read so feeling a denial of the charge from Southey himself, and after reading his communication, no one can doubt the sincerity of the greatest poetical genius of the age.

KESWICK, Cumberland, 5th March, 1817.

Dear Sir,

Your letter and your Gazetteer came yesterday in a parcel from my publishers Messieurs Lougman. I thank you sincerely for both; the book I shall find useful, and it would not be easy for me to express how much I have been affected as well as gratified by your letter. With that wide ocean between us, you and I are in sympathy with each other.

In awakening my feelings [illegible] strongly excited my curiosity. [illegible] stately one, upon the bell of [illegible] in my view, about [illegible] state [illegible] the side of the Greta. [illegible] When the [illegible] upon it to the person who rented the farm, an old man of the name of Slack, and this old oak that all artists have admired, was marked for the axe, and purchased with the rest. But, though Slack paid for it, he did not choose to destroy the tree. He said to me "It was long there before my time, and I would not be the man who should cut it down." I have respected the old man ever since. He has left the farm but the oak is yet standing.

There was within my view a yew tree, likewise of great age and beauty. The town of Keswick consists principally of one long street and this yew tree stood behind some houses, which have been erected not above twenty years; other buildings have since been built behind them, and to make room for these the yew, to my great regret, was destroyed.

There is yet a third tree to which your history may peradventure relate.—It is a Weymouth pine upon the top of a little hill called Cockshot—the hill is covered with wood, but this pine is manifestly half a century older than all the rest, and stands a conspicuous object above them all. If this should be your tree, I have a deeper feeling connected with it even than yours. I had an only son, of whom it has pleased God to bereave me—he was my pupil and I was his play-fellow—I loved him with all my heart, and with all my soul and with all my strength, for he was in intellect and disposition every thing I could desire, and in acquirements I believe superior to every boy of his age. He was the constant companion of my walks; and our last walk was to that pine tree. It was not a happy one, for the symptoms of that disease which proved mortal had appeared sufficiently to disquiet me greatly. But he chose that point for his walk and enjoyed upon its summit something of his habitual cheerfulness. And I remember that he touched the tree and remarked that it must have been planted before the surrounding wood. It is full in view from the window of my study—but I have never since ventured to the spot.

Tell me if either of these may be the memorial to which you allude, or direct me to it if you can, that if it be still standing, I may use my endeavors to prevent it from ever being cut down.

Tell me also how I may direct some of my recent publications to you. My publisher may probably enclose them in a packet to N. York, if you will inform me to whose care they may be directed. I would fain keep up this intercourse with you, and if you can enable me to ascertain your tree, I will have a drawing made of it and send it to you.

A ferocious attack was made upon me by some person at New-York upon the false supposition that I had written an abuse of the Americans. Very different are my feelings towards America. My inheritance indeed is there as well as in England. Wherever the English language prevails, there I hope that my [illegible] shall be found after many days—upon the waters of the Hudson as well as the Thames, and of our Derwentwater.

Your Gazetteer will be useful to me, for I have began a poem of considerable length, of which the scene lies in Connecticut, and the time, in Philip's war. Your state is near enough for the natural images of one country to be applicable to the other. My feelings towards America will be seen in this poem.

And now sir, God bless you,
your obliged friend,
ROBERT SOUTHEY.

Horatio Gates Spafford, Esq.

FOR THE GAZETTE.

To the Editor,

SIR—The following Stanzas were occasioned by a Concert given at the exchange rooms in Belfast, (Ireland) in the year 1816, for the benefit of Mr. Arthur O'Niel, the blind harper, whose unwearied and patriotic exertions have done much to revive among Irishmen a taste for that venerable instrument which was so long and so remarkably the favorite of their ancestors, that it became their national emblem. As a song the measure will suit the popular air of "Kitty Tyrrel."

Oh! the days are long past since the music of Erin,
Delighted her sons in the mansions of kings;
Since her chiefs in the joys of the festive boar sharing,
Were rous'd by the magic that flow'd from the strings!
Oh! 'tis long since the patriot heart was affected,
By strains that the deeds of forefathers told,
And long since the bard and the harp were respected,
[illegible]ent and bold!
By Irishmen free, in the pride of the ocean,
Our Island long flourish'd she bloom'd in the west;
As the olive of [illegible]has'd by war's barb'rous
And learning [illegible]
[illegible]-clad vales found protection
In he[illegible]
[illegible] with rapture, oft sung of her glo-
Ou[illegible] harp sweetly sounding, accompa-
[illegible] the strain,
[illegible]ot heart, fill'd with antiquity's story,
The warm pulse of gratitude throb in each vein.
[illegible] despis'd by the stranger who felt not his numbers,
The bard is now sunk in obscurity's vale,
And the harp quite neglected, in deep silence slumbers,
[illegible] sorrow's
Bids the warm strains of extacy flow from [illegible] strings;
Bids us hope that our country to fame may restore us,
While your bard feels the joy that from gratitude springs.

EDITED BY MORGAN NEVILLE.

MONDAY MORNING, JULY 24, 1820.

PUBLIC MEETING.

PITTSBURGH, July 14.

At a respectable Meeting of gentlemen belonging to all the different parties in this district, it was unanimously considered and agreed that our district has been most ably and satisfactorily represented for the last term, in Congress and in the general assembly of this state.

That any attempt, at this important period, to deprive the district of the talents and ability which has been displayed in promoting our interests by our late representatives, is prejudicial to the best interests of the district, and ought to be counteracted by all who have its welfare at heart.

That we all most sincerely wish for harmony of sentiment and of exertion, and will do our utmost to promote measures calculated to secure to us the services of our present representatives for another term.

We therefore invite a meeting of all good men of all parties, to assemble at the Court House, in this City, on Wednesday next, at 12 o'clock, in the hope that effectual measures may be adopted for ensuring to our district such a representation as may be most useful to us, and satisfactory to those whose dearest interests depend on a proper selection of candidates.

FELIX BRUNOT,
WM. ROBINSON, Jr.
D. S. SCULLY,
JOHN SPEAR,
J. M. SNOWDEN,
FELIX BRUNOT, Jr.
EWD. PATCHELL,
E. DENNY,
Committee.

PURSUANT to the above notice, upwards of 600 persons, a large proportion of whom were from the country, assembled in the Court-house, without distinction of party. The Hon. JONATHAN H. WALKER, Esq. was called to the Chair, and FELIX BRUNOT, Jr. appointed Secretary. The objects of the meeting having been stated from the chair; the following resolutions were severally read, and adopted, with but few dissenting voices.

Resolved, That the pre-eminent services rendered to this district by William Wilkins, esq. in the State Legislature, and by Henry Baldwin, esq. in Congress, entitle them to the highest gratitude and confidence of their constituents, & that, in the opinion of this meeting, the aspect of public affairs, & the vital interests of this district of the western country, demand imperiously a continuance of their best exertions in their respective stations, to complete the wise measure they have so happily begun.

Resolved, That the late nomination of William Wilkins, esq. as a candidate for Congress at the ensuing election is, in the opinion of this meeting, greatly prejudicial to the public good; inasmuch as it unavoidably withdraws him from the state legislature, at a period most essential to us—deprives us of the public services of either Mr. Baldwin or himself, when we most want an augmentation of representative strength, and have much to dread from a diminution of it, and obviously tends to excite dissention, division and strife, at a time when harmony and union are essential to our welfare.

Resolved. That this meeting strongly confiding in the public spirit, patriotism, and disinterestedness of William Wilkins, do most earnestly request and entreat him to withhold his assent to the proposal of becoming a candidate for Congress, and that he would agree to serve this district as a member of the House of Representatives in the State Legislature.

Resolved, That James Ross, esq. Anthony Beelen, Alexander M'Clurg, of Pittsburgh; Christopher Cowan, of Fayette; Doctor Joseph Curry, of St. Clair; John M'Clure, of Mifflin: James Brice, of Elizabeth; & William Robinson, Jr. of Ross, be a committee on behalf of this meeting to present these resolutions respectfully to William Wilkins, esq. and to obtain his answer to the same, which they are instructed to report to the meeting this afternoon.

The meeting then adjourned to meet again in the afternoon at 4 o'clock.

4 o'clock P. M.—The meeting having assembled and being organized as before, the committee appointed to wait on Mr. Wilkins made report—That having pursuant to instructions presented to Mr. Wilkins a copy of the resolutions of this meeting, they had received from his hands the following answer.

Pittsburgh, July 19.

To my Fellow Citizens.

Your Committee have done me the honour to present to me, a copy of several resolutions, this day adopted by you in a public meeting convened at the Court House in this city.

For this expression of your confidence and good opinion, I return you my very grateful and sincere acknowledgments. Such approbation of our fellow citizens is the highest reward we can receive for any service; and to me was unexpected, because unmerited.

However honourable and complimentary to me these public proceedings may be, they are not unattended with a great degree of pain & embarrassment. They again call upon me (I hope ably in a manner to be resisted) to become a candidate for nomination of the state legislature, made by a large portion of my fellow citizens, and was unexpected by me. Although ambitious to be useful to the community, upon which I have been engrafted from my very infancy to the present day, I did not aspire to that distinction which the Democratic Republicans were disposed to bestow upon me, at their last convention of delegates. But, a crisis in public feeling, evinced in the general cry, has arrived, at which I must answer; and, either pertinaciously persist in the course I have adopted or yield to your wishes.

Here, then, is my reply to your resolutions.—I give way; and consent to serve in the legislature of our state, if it should be the pleasure of the people to confer upon me that honourable station.

In thus yielding to the reiterated wishes of several public meetings and withdrawing my consent to a former nomination, I hope I violate no moral or political principle; and I also very sincerely hope, that I give no offence & commit no injustice to those gentlemen who did me the distinguished and disinterested favour of conferring on me that nomination. Resolved—That it is hereby earnestly recommended to all good men of all parties, to lay aside every minor party, or private consideration, and to come forward with zeal, vigour and unanimity, in support of WILLIAM WILKINS, Esq. as a member of the House of Representatives, in the state legislature of this state, for the ensuing year.

Resolved—That the whole proceedings of this meeting be drawn up in form, and presented by our chairman to William Wilkins, Esquire, and be published in the several newspapers of this city.

A paragraph in the last Gazette relative to the late Meeting of Young Men, has unintentionally given pain to the gentlemen named as Chairman and Secretary. They are of course, mere organs of the will of the meeting, and have no control over the proceedings but by express authority. At the late hour, it seems, when the question as to publication was put, there being left a majority opposed to it, no discretion remained with these gentlemen. Such, we know to have been the view of the matter taken by the writer of the communication referred to.

THE following letter from Robert Southey to a literary gentleman, in the north-western part of our state, was lately enclosed to us by a friend now travelling through that country. Any thing from such a pen as the laureate of England must be interesting; but the present letter is particularly so to those who are acquainted with the dispute between English and American genius, and with the insolence which has for some years distinguished several of the British periodical works, on the subject of American talent. Mr. Southey is one of those who have been suspected of contributing their mite in nourishing this prejudice. It must be gratifying to every American to read so feeling a denial of the charge from Southey himself, and after reading his communication, no one can doubt the sincerity of the greatest poetical genius of the age.

KESWICK, Cumberland, 5th March, 1817.

Dear Sir,

Your letter and your Gazetteer came yesterday in a parcel from my publishers Messieurs Lougman. I thank you sincerely for both; the book I shall find useful, and it would not be easy for me to express how much I have been affected as well as gratified by your letter. With that wide ocean between us, you and I are in sympathy with each other.

In awakening my feelings you [illegible] strongly excited my curiosity. [illegible] stately one, upon the dell of [illegible] in my view, about a quarter of a mile [illegible] the side of the Greta. [illegible] When the estate [illegible] upon it to the person who rented the farm, an old man of the name of Slack, and this old oak that all artists have admired, was marked for the axe, and purchased with the rest. But, though Slack paid for it, he did not choose to destroy the tree. He said to me "It was long there before my time, and I would not be the man who should cut it down." I have respected the old man ever since. He has left the farm but the oak is yet standing.

There was within my view a yew tree, likewise of great age and beauty. The town of Keswick consists principally of one long street and this yew tree stood behind some houses, which have been erected not above twenty years; other buildings have since been built behind them, and to make room for these the yew, to my great regret, was destroyed.

There is yet a third tree to which your history may peradventure relate.—It is a Weymouth pine upon the top of a little hill called Cockshot—the hill is covered with wood, but this pine is manifestly half a century older than all the rest, and stands a conspicuous object above them all. If this should be your tree, I have a deeper feeling connected with it even than yours. I had an only son, of whom it has pleased God to bereave me—he was my pupil and I was his play-fellow—I loved him with all my heart, and with all my soul and with all my strength, for he was in intellect and disposition every thing I could desire, and in acquirements I believe superior to every boy of his age. He was the constant companion of my walks; and our last walk was to that pine tree. It was not a happy one, for the symptoms of that disease which proved mortal had appeared sufficiently to disquiet me greatly. But he chose that point for his walk and enjoyed upon its summit something of his habitual cheerfulness. And I remember that he touched the tree and remarked that it must have been planted before the surrounding wood. It is full in view from the window of my study—but I have never since ventured to the spot.

Tell me if either of these may be the memorial to which you allude, or direct me to it if you can, that if it be still standing, I may use my endeavors to prevent it from ever being cut down.

Tell me also how I may direct some of my recent publications to you. My publisher may probably enclose them in a packet to N. York, if you will inform me to whose care they may be directed. I would fain keep up this intercourse with you, and if you can enable me to ascertain your tree, I will have a drawing made of it and send it to you.

A ferocious attack was made upon me by some person at New-York upon the false supposition that I had written an abuse of the Americans. Very different are my feelings towards America. My inheritance indeed is there as well as in England. Wherever the English language prevails, there I hope that my [illegible] shall be found after many days—upon the waters of the Hudson as well as the Thames, and of our Derwentwater.

Your Gazetteer will be useful to me, for I have began a poem of considerable length, of which the scene lies in Connecticut, and the time, in Philip's war. Your state is near enough for the natural images of one country to be applicable to the other. My feelings towards America will be seen in this poem.

And now sir, God bless you,
your obliged friend,
ROBERT SOUTHEY.

Horatio Gates Spafford, Esq.

FOR THE GAZETTE.

To the Editor,

SIR—The following Stanzas were occasioned by a Concert given at the exchange rooms in Belfast, (Ireland) in the year 1816, for the benefit of Mr. Arthur O'Niel, the blind harper, whose unwearied and patriotic exertions have done much to revive among Irishmen a taste for that venerable instrument which was so long and so remarkably the favorite of their ancestors, that it became their national emblem. As a song the measure will suit the popular air of "Kitty Tyrrel."

Oh! the days are long past since the music of Erin,
Delighted her sons in the mansions of kings;
Since her chiefs in the joys of the festive boar sharing,
Were rous'd by the magic that flow'd from the strings!
Oh! 'tis long since the patriot heart was affected,
By strains that the deeds of [illegible] forefathers told,
And long since the bard and the harp were respected,
[illegible]ndent and bold!
By Irishmen free, in the pride of the ocean,
Our Island long floupe she bloom'd in the west;
As the olive of [illegible]chas'd by war's barb'rous
And learning, [illegible]
[illegible]rock-clad vales found protection
In he[illegible]st;
[illegible]hen with rapture, oft sung of her glo-
Ou[illegible]
[illegible]e the harp sweetly sounding, accompanied the strain,
[illegible]patriot heart, fill'd with antiquity's story,
Felt the warm pulse of gratitude throb in each vein.
[illegible]t despis'd by the stranger who felt not his numbers,
The bard is now sunk in obscurity's vale,
And the harp quite neglected, in deep silence slumbers,
Except when [illegible]sorrow's sad
Bids the warm strains of extacy flow from the strings;
Bids us hope that our country to fame may restore us,
While your bard feels the joy that from gratitude springs.

TOWN OF MEMPHIS,

HAS been laid off by the proprietors on the Chickasaw Bluff, on the east bank of the Mississippi, 224 miles below the mouth of the Ohio. The position is noticed in the Pittsburgh Navigator, p. 165. The site of this town is believed to be the handsomest on the Mississippi below St. Louis.

It is the intention of the propietors not to offer the Lots at public sale, but to induce, and make it the interest of the prudent and discreet adventurers of all classes, to settle and improve the place. The plan for its settlement was not decided on until the 26th inst. when it was determined by the proprietors to dispose of no lots except to actual settlers for a reasonable consideration, payable at the end of five years, on bond, and security if required, to be given at the end of that time. The situation is handsome, well watered, and healty. It is situated in lat. 35'6 N. long. 13'W. from Washington, according to Melish's map. Its position and advantages invite the community particularly, to examine it and judge for themselves.

TOWN OF MEMPHIS,

HAS been laid off by the proprietors on the Chickasaw Bluff, on the east bank of the Mississippi, 224 miles below the mouth of the Ohio. The position is noticed in the Pittsburgh Navigator, p. 165. The site of this town is believed to be the handsomest on the Mississippi below St. Louis.

It is the intention of the propietors not to offer the Lots at public sale, but to induce, and make it the interest of the prudent and discreet adventurers of all classes, to settle and improve the place. The plan for its settlement was not decided on until the 26th inst. when it was determined by the proprietors to dispose of no lots except to actual settlers for a reasonable consideration, payable at the end of five years, on bond, and security if required, to be given at the end of that time. The situation is handsome, well watered, and healty. It is situated in lat. 35°6 N. long. 13° W. from Washington, according to Melish's map.
